

Q1 :

- How are NASA and JAXA's Earth observation programs responding to the urgent challenges posed by the rapidly changing planet?
- How do next-generation satellites for atmospheric precipitation observation differ from previous missions, and what advantages do they offer?

Q2 :

- As Public-private partnerships seem to be playing an increasingly important role in both NASA's and JAXA's Earth observation programs, share some of the policy and societal needs behind this trend?

Q3 :

- When it comes to using Earth observation (EO) data for business and decision-making, what kinds of challenges do you face?
- How are you working to address them?

Q4 :

- How are you using NASA and JAXA's Earth observation data in your businesses. And what are the values for EO in your business?
- Within the public-private partnership frameworks promoted by NASA and JAXA, what opportunities and challenges do you see?